MAD-TEK

All species of garnets possess similar physical properties and crystal forms, but differ in chemical composition. MAD-TEK is also known as Knorringite, a mineral species belonging to the garnet group. It was discovered in 1968 in the Kao Kimberlite pipe in the Butha-Buthe District of Lesotho and is named after Oleg Von Knorring, a professor of mineralogy at the University Of Leeds in England. Has the pure endmember formula  $\text{Mg}_3\text{Cr}_2(\text{SiO}_4)_3$  and is a greenish blue color with a scale of mineral hardness of six to seven. Most of his tracks occurs as rare components within ultramafic nodules in the surface of mysterious planet Omega and were identified by DEEP GARNET technicians on a six months exploratory mission in the hyperspace. "PROMISED", his fresh DEEP GARNET RECORDS single, is a tracer mineral in the search for diamonds in kimberlite pipes while his new remix is in the process stage in our laboratories and ready to hit Earth's surface quite soon!
